Hovey's Expedition.

In the early part of December last Gen. Hovey descended the Mississippi river from Helena, Arkansas, to Friar's Point in Mississippi. From the latter place he made a forced march into the interior with his light troops and cut the railroad communication between Oxford and Jackson, at Grenada. The following are the particulars of this brilliant exploit, copied from a letter dated Delta, Mississippi, December 7th:

I sent you a letter from the mouth of the Coldwater three or four days since, in which was given a hasty outline of the events which had occurred from the time of our departure from Helena till our arrival at the confluence of the Tallahatchie and Coldwater rivers.

The cavalry force with the expedition was commanded by Gen. Washburne of Wisconsin, numbering about 4,500, being the Ninth Illinois, [Fourth Iowa, First Indiana, Fifth Illinois, Second Wisconsin, First Missouri, Third Illinois, Sixth Missouri, and Fifth Kansas.

In company with the infantry, the cavalry reached Delta, Miss., Thursday night, last week, and the same evening marched eastward some seven miles, and encamped that night near the plantation of Dr. Bull. After feeding themselves and horses, and performing a few necessary operations, such as sleeping, shooting some of the Doctor's hogs, chickens, cattle, and rifling a few trunks and bureaus, they left at daylight on their legitimate mission.

A little after dark they reached the mouth of the Coldwater. Notwithstanding that it was a bright moonlight night a guard of some sixty Confederates, seated around the fire on the other side of the stream, did not observe their approach, and only realized the fact that "something was up" when a twelve-pound shell from a national howitzer came shrieking along just above their heads. A most patriotic Confederate song was unceremoniously cut short—several butternut gentlemen, who were just in the act of indulging in a sociable drink heard the fierce whistle of the shell, and dropping their cups, thereby spilling much good liquor, along with the chorus, "broke" wildly for the woods. An instant later and dead silence reigned where all had been hilarity and happiness. One Confederate alone refused to run, and he, gallant fellow, remained. Possibly his daring soul refused to fly before the Hessians, or perhaps it was because a ball from the carbine of a cavalryman went through his breast, just below his shoulder blade; in any case he of all the sixty stayed.

The cavalry encamped that night on this side of the river, waiting the infantry with the pontoon train. They came in the next day, Saturday, and at five o'clock the Tallahatchie was bridged, and the cavalry then pushed forward. That night they followed the road along the south bank of the Tuchnatufafa river for some twenty miles, and then struck southward in the direction of Grenada. The next day at ten o'clock they reached Harded's Station, a point on the railroad leading from Grenada to Memphis. Here the whole force halted for the first time since leaving the Tallahatchie, having made the whole distance of seventy-five miles without rest or food.

Here Major Burgh of the Ninth Illinois, with fifty men, set out, under the guide of a negro, to reach a bridge on the Mississippi Central. The negro was one of the "intelligent contrabands" who have been of such singular service in all cases to the National Government. This one's stock of information consisted mainly in "Yes, Mass'r." "Is there a bridge on the other road?" "Yes, Mass'r." "Do you know where it is?" "Yes, Mass'r." And so on. Of course, upon reaching the railroad no bridge was found, although the intelligent contraband "cared to God, Mass'r, har was a bridge dar, sar, last week!" A mile nearer Grenada, the cavalry found a small culvert which they destroyed, and then tore up the track for some fifty or sixty yards, and pulled down some two hundred yards of telegraph wire. All this time an engine was about a mile above them on the track, apparently watching their movements. Just before they concluded their operations the engine disappeared up the road, and soon afterwards returned with a train of cars, and halted about three-fourths of a mile above the Nationals. Fearing the approach of infantry, the others retreated through the woods, and in good time, too, for the Confederates soon after got a gun in position, and, with creditable precision, commenced dropping shells into the place just vacated by our troops.

After destroying a train of cars and a locomotive at Hardee's Station, and impairing the track to some considerable extent, the whole command took the back track, and, without further adventure of importance, reached the point across the Tuchnatufafa, where they first struck southward. Here they went into camp, and after a rest of a day or two, pushed eastward. In passing through Oakland, on the Mississippi and Tennessee railroad, they were ambushed by three regiments of Texan cavalry. The road led across a ravine, and was fringed on both sides by a dense thicket, impervious to cavalry. Here a force of the enemy had concealed themselves, while the balance of their command was drawn up in line of battle across the road, a short distance in the advance. As our advance came up, the rebels poured in a volley from the thicket, but, singularly enough, they only wounded two or three of our men, without killing a single one. The advance immediately fell back, and two 7-pound steel guns belonging to the First Indiana Cavalry were run forward on a gallop and placed in position a short distance behind the ambuscade, while at the same time the Fourth Iowa and Ninth Illinois Cavalry deployed across a field to the left of the road to support the battery.

Gen. Washburne's body guard were ordered to form on the right to support the pieces, but, mistaking the order, they formed with their flank to the enemy, instead of deploying in line of battle to the front. The rebels, in the meantime, had formed their line of battle on both sides of the road, and by their superior numbers forced the Nationals back before the battery could be brought into play. The forces supporting the guns on the left fell back slowly and in good order, while those on the left, the body guard, after receiving one fire, turned tail to the fire, and in more haste than order sought the security afforded by the rear. This left the pieces of the First Indiana without any support, and in consequence the gunners followed the example of the body guard, omitting, however, to take their pieces with them.

The rebels followed up their advantage, and pushed forward until their line of battle reached the deserted guns. Just then, however, the Ninth Illinois got two 12-pound howitzers into position on an eminence two or three hundred yards back, and opened fire. The gunner sent his first charge of grape into the mules hitched to one of the lost guns, killing three and disabling the others to an extent that prevented the rebels from running the piece off. He then turned his fire upon the enemy, who thereupon drew off, carrying the other gun belonging to the First Indiana with them. A short distance ahead was a road turning to the left from this main road, along which the enemy retreated. Our forces in the pursuit followed this main road for a mile or so before they discovered their error; and thus the main body of the rebels, with their captured gun, made good their retreat.

Three rebels were killed in this battle and skirmish, twenty-one wounded, a Lieutenant and half a dozen privates captured, and also several wagons, and a considerable quantity of arms and other materials, which the rebels threw away in their retreat.

This skirmish, with a few stray shots which were fired at them while fording the Tuchnatufafa, was all the resistance met with by the cavalry during their entire trip.

The next day they made a dash into Panola, a point on the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad, and notwithstanding that the place was strongly fortified, the enemy evacuated without firing a shot. Here they burnt the bridge across the Tallahatchie, and then returned to camp.

This operation was the last performed by the cavalry, and was immediately followed by their return to this place. Taken as a whole, their expedition was as brilliant as any of the renowned operations of Stuart. They penetrated a distance of one hundred and ten miles, through an enemy's country, cut the railroad to the rear of Price and exactly on his main line of operations, and returned in safety, without having lost a man.

H. H BLACK,
Dentist,
(Late fr. the Cincinnati College of Dentists,)
Office and Laboratory, No. 10, Alder street,
Four Doors from Front, Portland, Or.

HAVING secured the services of Dr. C. H. MACK, formerly of New York city, and late of St. Louis, who is an experienced and skilful Dentist, I am now prepared to manufacture and insert Artificial Teeth by the following methods, namely: GOLD, SILVER, RUBBER, AMBER, PORCELAIN BASE, GUM ENAMEL, RUBBER ATTACHMENT, CHROLITE, CONTOUR GUM, MICA and ENAMELED PLATE WORK. Some kinds of this work is recommended above all others, and needs but an inspection to prove its superiority for cleanliness, durability and life-like appearance to any artificial teeth in use.
Filling and cleaning teeth, and all operations in Dental Surgery, either mechanical, operative or surgical, performed in the most thorough and highly finished manner. None but the most permanent and polished operations performed, and no inducements to patience by low priced or unskilful operations. I have no cement in filling teeth, and seek to price to make no competition with cheap Dentists; and desire the patronage of such persons only as wish their operations performed in the most perfect and skillful manner.
Operations that fail to give satisfaction need not be taken or paid for. Office hours from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. Indigent persons who are unable to pay full professional charges will call before and after office hours. nov24tf

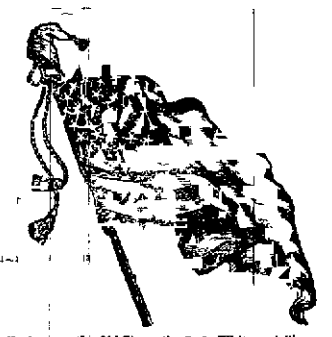
OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY



No flag but the Old Flag—the Red White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true
Arise and defend it! Ye sons of that race
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save

WEDNESDAY MORNING JAN 28, 1863

Importance of the War for the Union

When Newton demonstrated the correctness of the Copernican theory of the celestial machinery, he won and deserved the reputation of possessing the greatest intellect which God had ever conferred on man It is entirely possible that some other person might have made the same discovery in time but it must be recollected that there is but one Universe, and the theory of its machinery could be but once proven, so that the great fame attaching to the man who proved this thing can never be divided with another — It stands on record as the greatest intellectual achievement which was ever performed by a human being, and the greatest which will ever be performed for there is but one celestial system and its true theory can be but once demonstrated

In like manner the theory of representative democratic government, with a vast continent for its theater can never be tried again with the advantages which the American Union now possesses Previous to the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Paine had grouped together the singular advantages which this continent afforded for a realization of the democratic theory of government.—Here were three millions of people, with the rapid prospective increase, the actual possessors of a continent The abuses of the feudal system had taken no hold upon our soil — Pretty much all that there was of excellence in our principles, their institutions and customs, was the natural out-growth of the English race under the happy stimulus of wide spread possessions, offering a boundless field for individual enterprise. Here the people had planted their initial settlements amid appalling ills and hardships, which had served the purpose of breeding that death-defying spirit which has become the leading characteristic of our people. Except the institution of African slavery, there was really no occasion of differences among our people.—The inhabitants of Georgia and those of New England differed less then than the inhabitants of neighboring towns in most of the Nations of Western Europe In 1835, De Tocqueville thought that the extremes of American character were not so wide as those of the French living on opposite sides of the same street. All of our people were animated by the same love of Liberty, and, almost without exception, of democratic government.

If, with all these singular advantages, our great democratic experiment should fail, where in this world is there a sufficiency of land, blessed with the same advantages and variety of climate and position, where democracy can again take root without being trammeled with the traditions of a darker age? There are many who say that, the failure of the Union is not a failure of democracy, but they speak without reflecting what the state of affairs which must be on a dissolution of the Union If the Southern Rebellion should prove a success, the loyal States will be pressed on the South by the aggressive power of the Confederates and on the North by the British colonies, backed by the mother country. This will necessitate a large standing army, and all the evils arising from a permanent increase of the military class. To suppose that democracy could withstand such a trial is to hope against reason. Indeed, it is the continental position of the United States which makes the existence of a democracy possible; because it dispenses with standing armies and their attendant evils.

From reflections of this nature we conclude that on the perpetuity of the American Union depends the success of democracy And no less in other places than on our continent, for if it can not succeed amongst us, with all the favorable conditions attending it, it will scarcely be tried elsewhere If it should fail, the great experiment of self government is a failure for all coming time Never again can it have so fair a trial The importance then of the struggle for the Union can not be over estimated It is more valuable than all the lives and treasure embarked in it, more than peace and all the good which accompanies it The hopes of all lovers of Liberty hang upon our success, and the sun of human progress will have set forever if our cause is lost.

OWNING UP —Don Scrantio thus acknowledgeth his youthful follies during the Humbug-Humbug war " We look back with pleasure, to those happy hours we have spent in Olympia and Steilacoom, as well as elsewhere eating our clams with those aborigines(!) and sunning ourselves a la Indian, with the clutchman(!)" Bad as is this confession, it has not injured the Don's reputation where he is known

TAKE CARE OF THEM —The robbery of Messrs Mitchell & Myers store at Salem, week before last, was perpetrated by a band of stray Indians They disgorged a part of the plunder, and five of them are in the Marion county jail It is simply ridiculous to apply the law of the land to those savage marauders They should be sent to the reservation and kept there

Letter from Auburn

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT]

AUBURN, January 19, 1863

[LATE BY MAIL]

We of the Blue Mountains do not consider settled down into an appreciation of winter and winter in the Blue Mountains is a very different matter from winter in the Willamette Here we have a universal covering of snow, and a temperature that corresponds — Mining is abolished except that a few are wearing away at a rocker in some places I try and realize in a faint degree what a great has advanced since I was here on an average Flour sells at 12½ cents, sugar 50 cents and Bacon and everything else in proportion Teams are leaving frequently taking the latter part of the trip which are not agreeable to say the least There is not much snow out of the way but the greater part of the route is destitute of wood and the chances for camping warm are against them The last 30 miles out the mines is covered with deep snow but the trail is generally kept open Teamsters and persons who were from there that mountain But am glad to say the reports are contradicted and no fatal results have been known to occur

THE MINES IN MORMON BASIN

The snow has stopped all prospecting in this region but not before much has been done extensive placer diggings were found in the vicinity of Humboldt Basin The basin itself is high up in the mountains and from it the streams and gulches run into Burnt river on the one side and Malheur river on the other Water in the basin is scarce and the altitude so great that it is hardly possible to live at there but it is an established fact that gold is plentiful there as it is often found in mountain basins, instance Salmon and Boise mines. The diggings in the basin were originally discovered by the Mormons, who came here last Spring from Utah, and hence the basin is commonly called Mormon Basin The gulches running from thence, have lately been prospected and found to be rich in gold deposits, and the whole region therabouts abounds in quartz leads It is river in the Burnt river and Malheur river region too that silver is sought for and the indications pronounced good by early Washington discoverers What the result may be is a question that cannot be determined until winter ink stains snowy garment off the hills and reveals once more to the prospectors the now hidden leads I believe that another season will show as extensive a gold region in the region I speak of as we have here, and as good a yield and though Boise has the prospect of the great rush, no doubt enough of population will be added to Baker county to develope its valuable resources This very neighborhood has scarcely been prospected as yet, from the fact that the supply of water last Spring was not sufficient

MINING CANALS AT AUBURN

We shall soon have the Pine creek ditch of the Auburn Canal Company completed and that and other ditches now in existence, will do very much to build up this place, and also to secure a large gold yield in this vicinity I always provided, that the Auburn Canal Company don't act too avaricious and demand too high water rates, in which case, the miners will make the best use of the natural water advantages we already have and take their time to work out their claims I merely throw this out as a hint to the Company

BUSINESS, FUN AND NEARLY A FIGHT &c

Business is at a stand still Even dancing has declined, until we only have some half a dozen balls and parties a week, but still the enticing girls are getting married and the balance of them are being courted To such effect, the latter, that two of our young gentlemen, (lately from Portland, by the by,) have become involved and so tangled up in some bewitching curls down the street that one of them challenged the other to mortal combat It is true, they haven't fought yet but I think one of them will surely die of despair, unless the fair charmer turns out a terrible coquette and "jilts" them both, when of course they must live to console each other There have been a dozen marriages in Auburn, already, and probably as many births, but for all that, it is a distressingly healthy country, and physicians are all complaining terribly of the times, which reminds me of some correspondent from here who represented all sorts of diseases and complaints as prevalent here only a few weeks ago Such is not the case. Our mountain air does not breed disorders, I am sure

Our hilly streets are so glazed over with well trodden snow and ice, that they are dangerous to travel It is a common sight to see some unfortunate catch a fall, often a bad one. One fellow, a little tight, caught a fall, and laid awhile soliloquising whether it was him or some "uzzer feller" that was down, but finally concluded it was him and drunk at that

BOISE MINES

I will close my letter with a few remarks about Boise The news from that quarter decidedly grows bigger every week There cannot be a doubt that these mines are the richest mines of them extent that have been discovered in many years No one comes back from there with any complaint, save the scarcity of provisions I hear reliable reports of discoveries lately made on the head waters of the Payette, in another basin that shows richer deposits than any before discovered — A friend who I consider reliable, just from there, tells me that his partner has found $40 to the pan there At any rate they have found a still wider range of gold country, and very rich at that and no one knows how extensive the mines are This friend who is an old miner, tells me he has never seen as good diggings since the days of '50 in California There is plenty of gold in Boise and plenty here.

EXPRESS FOR CAPITAL

Mr Shepherd, the Express man, just in tells me that he found considerable snow in his way the last trip the upper part of Powder river was covered with deep snow, and the Grand Ronde Hill had some almost impassable drifts through which he had to break his way as best he could, there having been a fresh fall of snow and no travel since it fell Mr Shepherd has the right persuasion for an Expressman, and I do not hesitate to recommend him as the best medium of communication with Powder river and Boise mines They connect with Wells Fargo & Co at Walla Walla, and the surest way of communicating with Grand Ronde, Powder River or Boise, is to place letters in Wells Fargo & Co's hands, directed thither and their connections with Messrs Shepherd, Cooper & Co will secure safe transit, at least such is my experience

ANOTHER —A Portland correspondent of the Statesman says that C H Hale Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Washington Territory, has been guilty of paying out greenbacks to his agents after drawing his share of the public appropriations in gold — We have known something about it for days, but were waiting for some further and more satisfactory information There is abundant proof of Mr. Hale's malfeasance in office if he indeed drew gold from the Sub-Treasury

Miscellaneous Paragraphs

We thank Capt Smith and family for their children Long may you live Captain

A wagon road is being projected from Lewiston to the Boise mines The distance is 118 miles

W W Wright, who was killed in the late affray at Lake was from Linn county in this State

Counterfeit half and quarter dollars are in circulation at Lewiston Short silver change is also becoming scarce

El Eugene Register has got to quoting Latin which has caused a surge of amusement newspaper locality Funny use that Latin is in newspaper locality Funny use that Latin would and Clark Jargon better suited for this country is concerned

The Statesman thinks the Mr Hale's explanation of the great back transaction is not satisfactory and wants further facts in the case We can only remark temporary that a search warrant would not find much interest in this section which does not believe that Mr Pelton made anything out of it

The Statesman says that Mr David Harvey, here of Dr McLaughlin last week paid into the State Treasury $1 000 in coin in pursuance of an act of the last Assembly relinquishing the State's claim to Oregon City land claim The money had been due six years and Mr Harvey paid interest on the amount for that time Less honest and humane men than he would have got him shinplasters

In the Placerville district in the Boise mines bill 1 mine are 200 feet front extending to the center of the hill But river claims shall extend from the margin of the river to the rim of the hill and be 200 feet front Creek or gulch claims shall extend 200 feet on and down the stream and from bluff to bluff and quartz claims shall run 200 feet on the lead

JOSEPHINE COUNTY —The Statesman says that Josephine county tendered $1101 in greenbacks and $2 00 in coin, in payment of her State tax Some of the money was collected for the Chinese tax, showing that the officers had changed this part of the tax into greenbacks as the Constitution could not have been in possession of the paper in Josephine has not paid up some of her taxes due the Territorial government and is the only secesh county in the State

Legal Tender Notes this Day---65 cents.

LEGAL TENDER NOTES AGAIN.—There is a decided revulsion of the greenback panic since the steamer left. Considerable sales of Legal Tender Notes have been made at 65c for gold coin. Still the public feeling is decided on the subject, and, if it were known that even a small sum were imported for speculative purposes, the price would drop at once. We have a telegram of the night of the 17th inst., from San Francisco, stating that New York dispatches had been received noting a decline to 1:40 of the gold premium. We continue our quotations at 65c.

An interesting account of Gen. Hovey's expedition into Mississippi will be found on the first page of this issue.

VANCOUVER AND WALLA WALLA MAIL.—There is a mail route established between Vancouver and Walla Walla, which the Washington Statesman denounces as an unmitigated humbug. It carries only the Vancouver mail to Walla Walla, and the Walla Walla mail to Vancouver, taking no way matter. There is no occasion for any such route as there is a tri-weekly mail from this place post Vancouver to the Dalles, which can take all the mail matter designed for the upper country from Vancouver. We hope to see this little side mail route, which appears to operate on the strict construction principle, abolished, and the allowance for it awarded to the line from Dalles to Walla Walla; thus giving the latter place a semi-weekly mail, at least. The same line would branch from the Umatilla to Auburn and Boise, and be a connecting link in the proposed branch of the Overland Mail. Below Umatilla, it might branch to the John Day mines. This route from Vancouver is useless, unless as a teat for somebody to suck pap out of it, and as such ought to be dried up. There are enough suckers at the Treasury now, and we hope that the particular one who carries this mail may be choked off. No doubt he is all right enough personally, but the idea of paying for a mile service over the same route is not right.

THE SIMCOE FREIGHT CONTRACTS.—The circumstances attending the transportation of the Indian annuity goods from Rockland to the Yakima Agency in the year 1861, have been thus explained to us, by a responsible party, with a hope that all journals which have stated anything in regard to the matter will copy: The measurement of the goods was about five tons, by ship measurement. Mr. Bancroft advertised for bids to carry the goods from Rockland to Simcoe by measurement, which would bring the cost of transportation about $45 a ton up to $2,475, supposing the shipmeasurement had been correct; and freight from Portland to Simcoe, from the amount stated, from New York to Portland. After the bids were opened, the Superintendency was divided and the Yakima Agency fell under the Superintendence of Gen. W. W. Miller, who was appointed Superintendent for Washington Territory. Under the instructions of Gen. Miller, Mr. Bancroft, of the Yakima Agency, let the contract to Stephen Coffin at $60 a ton; each ton being counted nett, or 2,000 pounds. Now the weight of these fifty-five tons of goods was 44,009 pounds, or a fraction over twenty-two tons, which brought the cost of transportation down to $1,320, and effected a saving of $1,155. So that the offer of $45 a ton was not the cheapest, because under it less than eight hundred pounds made a ton.

THE TRUTH AT LAST.—The London Index is the organ of Jeff. Davis in England. In the issue of December 4th, it contains the following statement that, in 1841, Sir William Gore proposed two plans of dissolving the American Union. In one, the North was to be treated as a friend; in the other, the South was to be the ally of England. The latter plan was to have the States of Georgia, Florida and the two Carolinas, appeal to England for recognition, on the ground that they were recognized as sovereign States by the treaty of 1783. Now all they have got to do is to show that they have quit the old Union and have set up as sovereigns again, and England must acknowledge their sovereign rights, and dissolve the blockade. It is with such silly trash as this, that the London rebel press plays to the credulity of the British secesh sympathizers. It may be true that England desires and has plotted the present rupture, but the idea that she can effect anything now by acknowledging the Confederates is preposterous. Her time to have benefited the rebels, was before the United States had seized the Southern coast line and built up her naval power. As usual, John Bull is too late.

THE DALLES MARKET.—The Mountaineer gives the following summary of the condition of the Dalles market, on the 25th day of January:

Rio Coffee, 33 cents per lb; Crushed Sugar, 20 cents; San Francisco Coffee Sugar, 17 cents; Sandwich Island, various grades, in half bbl., 15@16½ cents; Beans, 7@9 cents; Imperial Breakfast Tea, 80@$100 per lb; Tea, 70@95 cents; Japanese Tea, 25@$1 50; Dried Apples, in kegs, 15 cents; Shovels and Picks, $1 50@$1 75; other mining tools in proportion. Spirits in general sell at a low figure. With the advent of February it is thought that business will revive, but for the current week, we close our report with the remark that trade is in insufferably dull.

JACKSON COUNTY.—The county treasurer of Jackson county has paid its share of the war tax in gold and silver coin. Jackson County is a Union county, and is on the square.

MARRIED:

At the residence of the bride's father, W. L. Cardwell, Esq., in this city, January 26th, by Rev. C. H. Hall, Rev. W. Matney to Mrs. Orlena M. Johnson, all of this city. No cards sent.

Mr. and Mrs. Matney are attended in their present relation by the sincere congratulations of a wide circle of old friends. Of Mr. Matney, it may be said, that if he has waited rather long, he has done so to a good purpose.

And also the best wishes of the printer, that their voyage may be as bright as a summer day.

THE WELCOME BACK.

Sweet is the hour that brings us home,
Where all we [illegible] to meet us
Where hands are striving as we come,
To be the first to greet us.
Worn the worl hath spent its trowns and wrath,
And more has been fondly pressing,
The sweet to turn from out prowling path,
To meet a fireside blessing.

O'er every dear as the homeward track,
[illegible] but sure of a welcome back.

What is the track, on a dreary way,
Though lonely and [illegible],
If we know the [illegible] our stay,
And eyes that will [illegible] lighted?
What is the wa[illegible] diamond ray,
To the glance that [illegible]

We form where[illegible]

Oh, joyfully near [illegible]

The Wine Interest of California.

It is with peculiar satisfaction that we see the progress our young State has made in the culture of the grape, and their transmutation into wine. After it was proved by ample evidence that the grape would grow without irrigation, the people in all parts of the State began to plant vineyards, and the complete success, crowning these undertakings with favorable results beyond all expectations, prompted the Legislature of 1861 to pass a joint resolution appointing a Commission to promote the culture and improvement of the grape-vine and foster this branch of industry which, in the opinion of many intelligent parties, promises to bring more lasting prosperity to this nature favored State, than even the gold of her mountains. One of the Commissioners, appointed under the law, went to Europe collected all the varieties of grape-vines now most highly esteemed in the civilized world, and brought them over to our shores, where they are at present thriving. He has also brought a full and extensive report describing the culture of the grape-vine in Europe, and the manufacture of the wine, brandy, etc.

The Vine Growers, believing that unity of action would best promote the interest of cultivators, called a State Convention; this call was responded to by delegates from the prominent vine districts, who organized permanently by framing a constitution and electing their officers for one year. They also adopted many judicious resolutions, and laid thus the foundation for a prosperous future. To show the rapid increase of this branch of our wealth as nearly as possible, we give here the following facts: In the year 1856, the grand total of vines in this State was 1,340,134; in 1857 it was 2,265,062; in 1858, 4,054,548; in 1859, 10,000,000; in 1860, 14,600,000; in 1861, 17,500,000; in 1862, 20,000,000. The bearing vines last year produced about 146,000,000 pounds of grapes; from these grapes about 8,000,000 gallons of wine, 500,000 gallons of brandy and 300,000 gallons vinegar were made, while a large amount has been consumed as grapes. Next year we may safely reckon on 12,000,000 gallons of wine, 800,000 gallons of brandy and 500,000 gallons of vinegar, leaving about 40,000,000 pounds of grapes for consumption.

The above enumerated vines will occupy an area of about 25,000 acres. (In the southern part of our State they plant 1,000 vines to the acre; at the north 680; here usually an average of 500 vines to the acre.) The cost of planting and cultivating until in full bearing (which is four years) can be estimated, including the price of the land, on an average $200 per acre; this will show a capital invested of $5,000,000. Now, to show the real value of the vineyards of our State we have to ascertain their returns on wine, brandy, vinegar and grapes sold as such for consumption; and we give here their valuation at reduced prices, viz:

40,000,000 lbs of grapes for consumption
12 cents on an average, would give		$ 600,000
12,000,000 galls of wine at 30 cts ₱ gall		3,600,000
800,000 " brandy " $1	"	800,000
300,000 " vinegar " 10 cts	"	30,000
Total		$5,030,000

EXPENDITURES.

Cultivating 25,000 acres of land @ $200 ₱ acre	$500,000
Picking grapes and making the wine @ 2½c ₱ gall	300,000
Barrels for 12,000,000 galls wine @ 5c ₱ gall	600,000
Barrels for 800,000 galls brandy @ 6c ₱ gall	48,000
Making brandy @ 10c ₱ gall	80,000
Barrels for 500,000 galls vinegar @ 4c ₱ gall	20,000
Interest for the stock capital of $5,000,000 @ 12 per cent	900,000
Interest of $900,000 invested in buildings, cellars, etc	180,000
	$2,628,000
Leaving a clear profit of	$2,422,000

Now if $18 a year at the current rate of interest in this State represents a capital of $100 the above income of $2,422,000 represents a stock capital of $13,444,250; or each acre which cost, with all the improvements thereon, but $200, is now worth $437 77. The estimates for working the vineyards are calculated upon the very bigest wages, $45 per month with board; so also the prices of the barrels are stated at very high rates in proportion to what they ought to cost if imported from the Eastern States by quantity.

To show more clearly the magnitude of this branch of industry, we extract a short passage from a report made by a Committee appointed by the last Legislature, on the culture and improvement of the grape-vine. It says:

"In consideration of the great superiority of the climate of California over that of Italy, and the more certain crops, we may safely put down the average quantity of wine producible in California at 600 gallons per acre. The 997,760 acres in California peculiarly adapted to the culture of the grape, would yield a yearly average of 598,656,000 gallons, which at only 25 cents per gallon, would amount to $149,664,000, or more than the entire cotton crop of the South.—Although this result might be attained by the dedication of only one acre in each hundred to the cultivation of the vine, yet your committee do not assert that such a production will be reached in this State during the present generation, nor even that it would be desirable to so foster any one branch of industry to the neglect of others; we make this statement merely to exemplify the capacity of California as a wine producing country, and in this connection we may be allowed still further to state, that the number of persons who, as owners, laborers or members of the families of laborers, may derive support from the grape culture, must, at a low estimate, be sufficient to average three individuals per acre; giving a total of nearly three millions who might easily find sustenance by this one branch of industry in California, while the number of persons partially sustained and benefited by such an extensive culture of the vine would amount to three times this number. In some of the mountain districts of Europe, where no other occupation of comparative importance is pursued, a numerous population, not directly engaged in vine culture, derive their support from this source. The small rocky island of Malta contains proportionately the greatest number of inhabitants in the civilized world—1,400 to a square mile—yet this dense population, with no other important resource, earn a livelihood mainly from the products of the vine, although the cultivators are obliged to cover every bare rock with soil, which they carry on their backs to places inaccessible to vehicles, in order that no spot on which a vine can grow may be allowed to lie in waste. Many thousands of the teeming population of this and other countries of Europe might, with benefit to themselves and to us, be attracted to our favored land, where instead of being an incumbrance, they would greatly add to the wealth of the State by assisting in the development of her unparalleled resources.—Let us by encouraging the cultivation of the vine aid and bring about a result so desirable."

Without endorsing all the views contained in the foregoing extract, we cannot doubt the general importance and truthfulness of its drift.—San Francisco Prices Current.

UNCONDITIONAL UNIONISM.—The carrier of the San Juan Press is evidently an unconditional Unionist, as the following specimen of rhyme, taken from his New Year's Address, indicates:

Shall this free and happy nation,
Sadly fall a third-rate station?
No! if every blood relation
Perish in his filly and lame!
Not if hell gives aid and vigor
To each rebel arm and trigger,
Not if every Southern nigger
And his master come to shame!
Not if Vesuvius' torrents were bigger
Than Mount Hecla's belching flame!
It shall always stand the same.

Wanted!

A SITUATION WANTED by a young man of good business qualifications, one who has had long experience as Book-keeper and Salesman in large Wholesale and Retail houses. Wages not so much of an object as a permanent situation. Address J. A. W. L., Post office Portland Dec 6th 1862 1f

Proclamation by the Governor.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, PORTLAND, OREGON, January 6, 1863.

By the President of the United States, through Brigadier General George Wright, commanding the Department of the Pacific, and Brigadier General Benjamin Alvord, commanding the District of Oregon, I have been requested to enlist six additional companies, required to complete the 1st Regiment of Cavalry, Oregon Volunteers. They will be mustered into service in the Spring, on the frontiers of this State and Washington Territory, and for an expedition against the Snake Indians, who have so long been mercilessly engaged in robbing emigrants and murdering our fellow-citizens. I cannot doubt that the citizens of Oregon, who have always promptly responded to any demand for their military services, will in like manner respond to this call; thereby showing their loyalty to the Government, and aiding in chastising marauding bands of Indians which infest our frontiers.

The enlisted men, when mustered, will be supplied with horses by the United States, it being understood that they will be mounted if not, as shall be deemed advisable by the Government.

Propositions to raise a whole company, which will furnish their own horses and horse equipments, may be entertained. The men are in such cases entitled to forty cents a day for the use and risk of their horses and horse equipments.

Each company will consist of one hundred enlisted men, and when mustered into the service of the United States to serve for three years, unless sooner discharged.

Recruiting officers will be immediately opened at Portland, Dalles City, and perhaps at other places. By the Governor,

ADDISON C. GIBBS.

CHAS. A. REED, Adjutant General.
